It seems necessary to consult the G. of I. and Sir P. Cox on this point. The latter (see his telegram of 28th Nov. 1914, flagged) recommended the concession* in the case of the Basra merchants on the grounds (1) that the British army of occupation had been well received at Basra, & that the mercantile element there was quite ready to come under British protection; and (2) that we had proclaimed that we had no quarrel with the friendly resident population*. It is for Sir P. Cox to say whether these considerations apply equally to Amara.

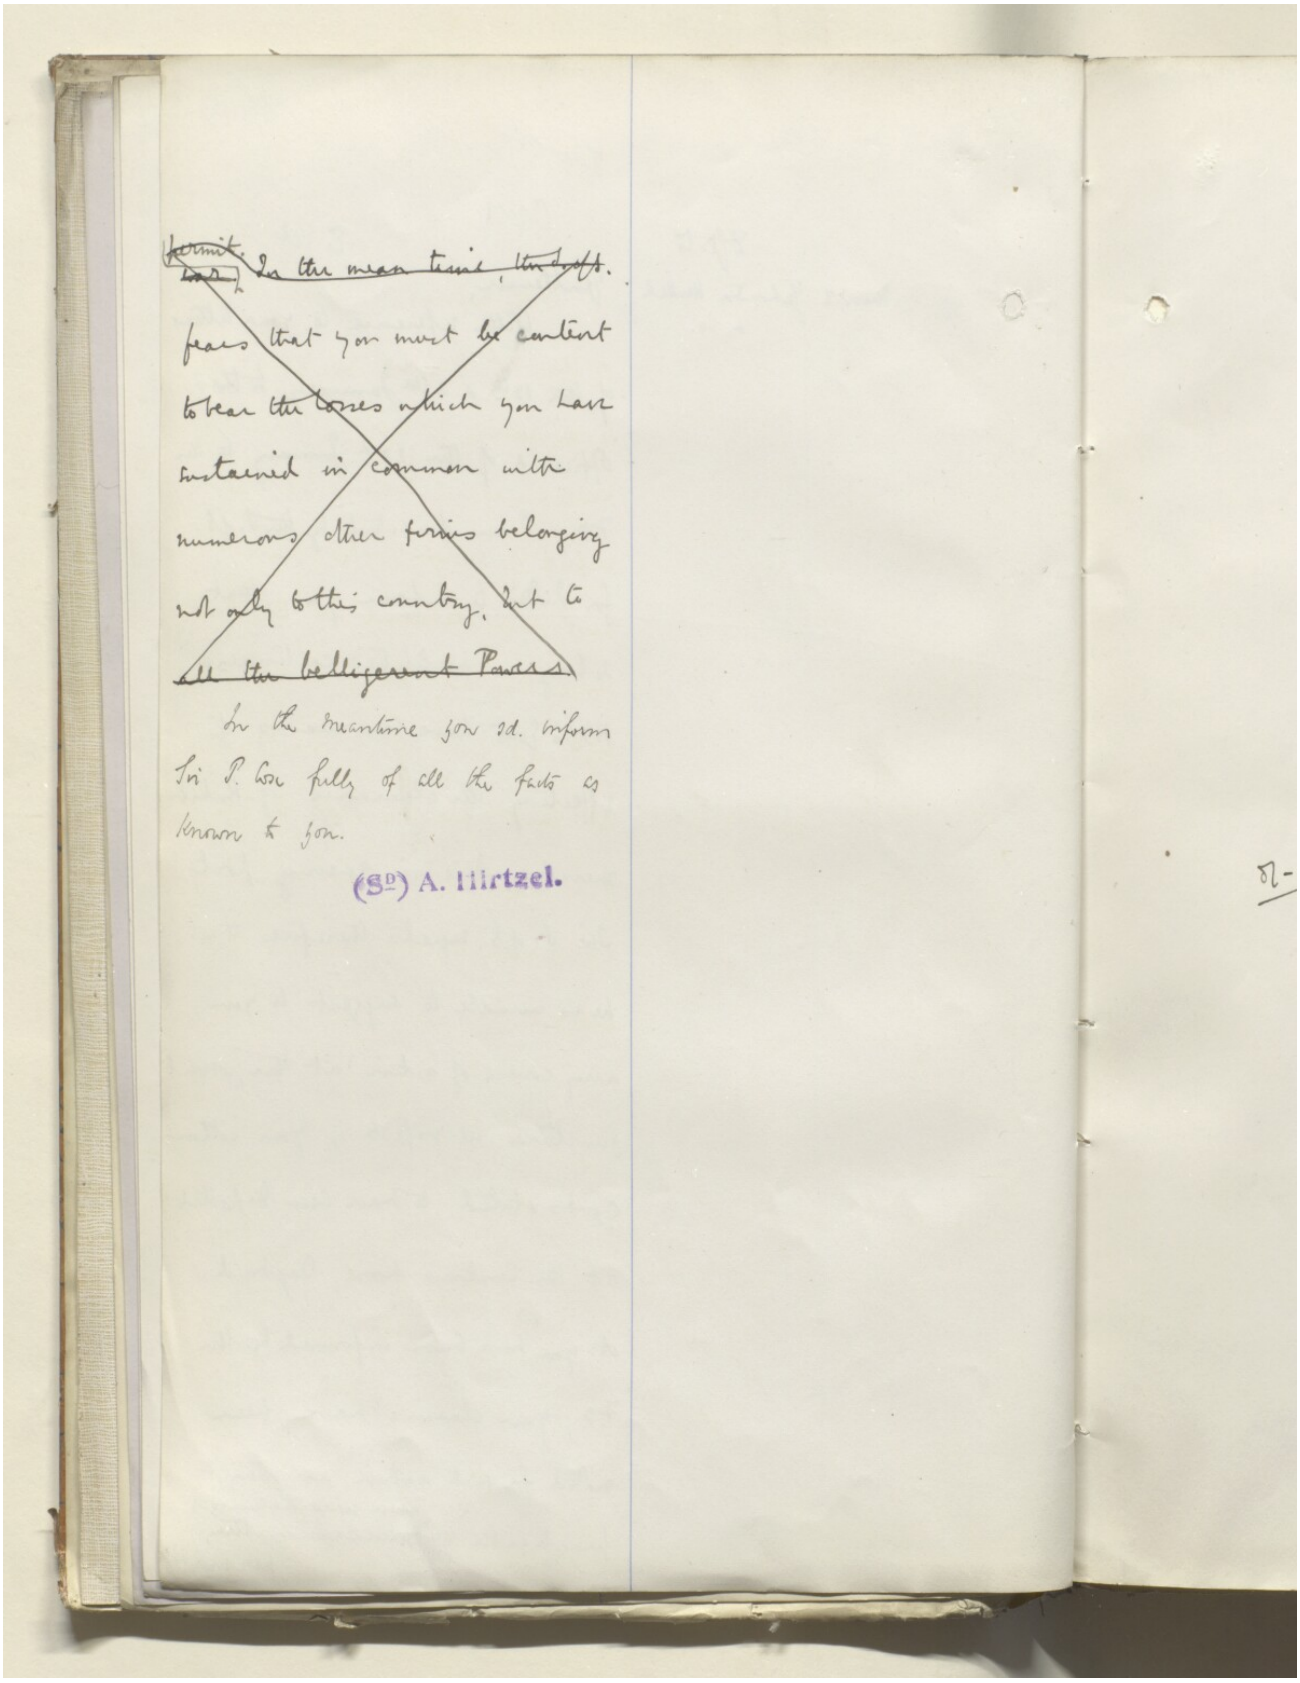
Gentlemen,

With reference to your letters of the 12th & 26th January to this Office & of the 23rd January to the F.O., I am directed by the S. of S. for India to inform you that, so long as hostilities continue, H.M.'s Govt have no means of effecting the clearance of British merchandise in enemy ports. The S. of S. regrets therefore that he is unable to suggest to you any course of action at the present juncture in respect of your cotton goods stated to have been deposited at the Customs House, Baghdad. As you have been informed by the F.O., your claims have been noted for such action as may be when circumstances practicable ~~abitrarily~~ permit.



In the mean time, the Govt. fears that you must be content to bear the losses which you have sustained in common with numerous other persons belonging not only to this country, but to all the belligerent Powers.

In the meantime you will inform Sir P. Cox fully of all the facts as known to you.

Dear Hirtzel:-

Thanks for your letter of the 27th ultimo respecting Yehonda Heskel's goods at Bagdad.

We are sorry we did not explain matters more clearly to the firm, but we took it for granted that it would be as obvious to them as it was to us that neither the British Government nor a British firm can rescue goods in the hands of the enemy except by re-suming possession of them by act of war or by claiming them or their value when peace is concluded. All over Turkey British goods have been ruthlessly seized and requisitioned - at Constantinople alone the claims will run into thousands of pounds - and even if the American Consular staff were very much strengthened they could do nothing, any more than they can do here for the Germans. Messrs. Yehonda Heskel's claim has been duly noted here and they must in the meanwhile I fear bear the loss like hundreds of other firms.

In reply, they have been informed that His Majesty's Government have noted the facts submitted, and will give them such assistance as they can, at the end of the war.

Sir,

Per the steamer "Manica" from Manchester 27th April/14 we sent to the Customs house at Bagdad the following goods

22 Bales marked E.K.N. Bagdad Diara "39/59" Cotton Goods of the value £2.139
102 " " " "5811/5912" " " £12.833.
124 " " " £14.472

The Bills of lading for same are in our hands, & as we are unable to communicate in any way with our agent at Bagdad, we are at a loss to know how to act.

Could you advise the best means to have these goods cleared?, as we fear if left until the arrival of the British Forces, they may receive similar treatment to that at the Russia Customs house, when we were mulcted in damages to the extent of £14.294, & naturally we are very desirous of escaping similar fears.

Being British Merchants we appeal for guidance, & any information you could offer, or any service render on our behalf would be gratefully appreciated, as under prevailing circumstances it has been impossible to effect Insurance against these risks.

Yours faithfully,
Ezekiel Heskel & Co.

Borte, Edgar & Co.'s letters to the F.O. of 28th December are anterior in date to our letter to Yehonda Heskel & Co. (dated 1st January) intimating that the proper course for firms desiring to prefer claims is to address Sir P. Cox direct in the first instance. Yehonda Heskel & Co. evidently passed on this information to other interested parties, for Borte Edgar & Co., in their letters to this Office of 7th, 8th January, suggest the proposed course on ~~the communication~~ themselves. It is clearly desirable that a uniform procedure ~~course~~ shd. be adopted in dealing with these claims (of which there may be many) & a sentence has accordingly been inserted in the Off. letter to the F.O. suggesting that all future communications on the subject shd. be transferred to this Office for disposal. We can always consult the F.O., if any new point arises making it necessary to obtain their assent. In the meantime it seems desirable to keep them regularly informed of what passes. It will

With reference to your letter of the 7th instant P.4703 respecting the status of natives of Basra I am directed by Secretary Sir E. Grey to reply that Basra being a portion of Ottoman territory occupied by an invading force, the nationality of its inhabitants is not thereby affected, and that, from a legal point of view, until some formal change in their status is made by annexation or otherwise, they must continue to be regarded as Ottoman subjects.

This telegram had in view the approaching declaration of a formal protectorate in Egypt and above all the anomalous position of Egyptians at a time when a state of

With reference to my letter No.76369 of the 5th instant, I am directed by Secretary Sir E. A very large proportion of these cargoes will no doubt be entitled to release as being the property of Basra merchants, but it is understood that owing to the large number of consignments and the perishable nature of the commodity it would be in practice impossible either to ascertain which parcels are thus entitled to release, or to arrange for their release on bail, without very serious risk of the market being missed and serious financial losses ensuing. It is also understood that, even as regards any parcels which might not be entitled to release, these shipments are re Trading with the Enemy.

Gentlemen,

Before war broke out with Turkey, in fact before War broke out in Europe at all, we executed an order for account of our client Mr. Fathalla Tomas Wahayed, Busreh, Persian Gulf.

We duly arranged shipment per the s.s. "Kansas" from Liverpool to Busreh, via Bombay and documents have not been completed, and we want to know how we now stand in this matter. We have no means of knowing the nationality of Mr. Wahayed, and as you know Busreh is in Turkey, but we understand it has now been taken by Indian Forces and is at present in British occupation.

Will you please be kind enough to advise us whether we shall be quite in order in drawing on this client for the amount of the shipment, or whether it will be necessary for us to make arrangements for delivery to be taken at Bombay and the goods held there until such time as the war is over.

We await the pleasure of your advice in the matter, and beg to remain,

Yours faithfully,
per pro Staveley and Co.

Sir:-

I am directed by Secretary Sir E. Grey to transmit to you herewith copies of two letters which have been addressed to the Procurator-General on the subject of property belonging to Basra merchants and requesting that the cargoes of the Basra date ships which are now before the Prize Courts may be released forthwith.

In view of the circumstances explained in the letter of to-day's date I am to request that immediate instructions may be issued by the Commissioners of Customs and Excise to the effect that any such cargoes which are about to arrive in this country may not be seized. Sir E. Grey understands that the ships in question are the "Amatonga", "Galaval", "Linaria", and "Albistan", some of which have already arrived.

are financed to such an extent by British firms, whose claims, in the event of the goods being condemned, would no doubt be dealt with by the Prize Claims Committee, that there is in practice no risk that the immediate release of these cargoes would cause any appreciable diminution in the Prize Fund. In these circumstances Sir E. Grey would be glad if you would be so good as to arrange for the immediate release of these consignments of dates which are at present in the Prize Courts, and the Board of Customs are being requested not to seize any cargoes which are about to arrive.

Sir E. Grey has of course no desire to interfere in any way with your discretion as to cargoes from Basra which are of a less perishable nature, and as to which you may think it desirable to require proof that the goods are in fact the property of Basra merchants.

Gentlemen
The Foreign Office informs us they have referred our letter to them, of the 25th Nov^r, to you. We have taken the liberty of forwarding a copy of this letter as rumours of considerable firing & looting at Basra, occured there, before the British occupation, we are naturally very anxious to learn if there is any truth in these rumours.
Any news or instructions how to proceed would be greatly appreciated.
Thanking you in anticipation

I should not think so. There should be no difficulty in identifying them from the warehouse books

Civil population Basra has received its well and mercantile element is separately quite ready to come under British protection. Also we have proclaimed that we have no quarrel with friendly resident population. In these circumstances it would be wise in my opinion if we refrain from treating consignments of Basra merchants now on the high seas as enemy cargo.

Can I be authorised to reassure enquirers on this point?

My telegram dated 24th November. Basra proclamation. Please expedite reply.

From Viceroy, 30th November 1914.

Foreign Secret. Proclamation, Basra. Cox telegraphs 27th November. Following is summary of proclamation issued over my signature on behalf of General Officer Commanding :—

"Reminds public that Great Britain greatest Mohamadan powers always good friend Turkey, and repeatedly urged Turkey against being inveigled into this war, and in the event of her abstaining undertook with her allies to assure Turkey's integrity and independence, but mislead by Germany Turkey paid no heed and by her hostile behaviour forced war upon Great Britain. British expedition consequently despatched and had occupied Basra and neighbourhood and British flag had now replaced Turkish flag and administration in this region. But though at war with Turks [?] Government British had no enmity or design against the local inhabitants and were prepared to be their friends and protectors. Under the British flag they would enjoy protection and freedom both in their religious and secular affairs. They were at liberty to pursue their normal avocations and business without apprehension, and troops had received strictest instructions to treat population with utmost courtesy and consideration and same attitude was expected from them."

This is sent with reference to your telegram of 24th November.
